FIRST BALLOT

Results In Nomination Of W. J. Bryan.

Wild Demonstration By Democrats At Denver.

Ollie James Seconds Nomination Of Nebraskan.

BIG KENTUCKIAN MAKES BIG HIT.

William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska, was named for the third time as the nominee of the Democratic party for President of the United States.

The nomination ended an all-night session of the Democratic National Convention, which was the most enthusiastic ever held.

Besides Mr. Bryan, Gov. John A. Johnson, of Minnesota, and Judge George Gray, of Delaware, were placed in nomination.

New York gave 78 votes for Bryan. Murphy cast the vote.

Great cheering greeted the announcement of New York's vote. When the roll of the delegation was called by request, Parker and Sheehan did not respond.

The vote was: Bryan, 892 1-2; Gray, 59 1-2; Johnson, 46.

The speech placing William J. Bryan in nomination awakened a whirlwind of demonstration rivaling in intensity and duration the record-breaking tribute of yesterday.

The tide of sentiment was unmistakably and overwhelmingly in favor of the Nebraska candidate, and overshadowed his nomination before the session closed.

Rules Suspended.

The Platform Committee was not ready to report when the evening session began, and after listening to political oratory, the rules of procedure were suspended and the convention proceeded with the speeches placing the candidates for President in nomination, with the understanding that the usual vote would be deferred until the platform had been adopted.

The speech placing William J. Bryan in nomination was made by Ignatius J. Dunn, of Nebraska, a youthful orator of fire and eloquence, whose closing phrase stirred the vast assemblage into wild demonstration.

"I nominate," he exclaimed, "as the standard bearer of our party, the man who, in the thrilling days of 1896 and 1900, bore the battle-scarred banner of Democracy with fame as untarnished as the crusaders of old—America's great commoner, Nebraska's gifted son, William Jennings Bryan."

Immediately perfect pandemonium of sound and motion was unloosed, as delegates and spectators rose en masse and joined in the reverberating chorus of tribute to the Nebraska candidate. The standards of the States were wrenched from their places and borne through the hall to the platform, while banners bearing the portrait of the commoner were waved aloft, and the multitude joined in long-continued tribute. At times the intensity of the demonstration threatened a panic. One woman was borne out fainting.

A few moments after the cheering began, an immense oil painting of Mr. Bryan was lowered from behind a monster American shield which had reposed over the chairman's desk ever since the convention began. The appearance of the picture raised the pitch of the outburst.

The delegates poured from the convention floor onto the already overcrowded stage. James Dahlgren, of Omaha, a Bryan leader, jumped to the secretary's desk and urged the throng forward. The State standards were grouped about the platform. Galleries and delegates were on their feet, waving the thousands of flags and cheering themselves hoarse. Many of the New York delegates stood and cheered with the others, but the majority remained seated.

Only six banners were missing from the States in the parade through the aisles, after the grouping at the stage had broken into a procession. These were Maryland, Minnesota, New York, Georgia, New Jersey and Delaware.

When the noise had continued for just forty-five minutes the sergeants-at-arms began their first efforts to still the uproar and to clear the aisles. The word was given to messengers that it was desired that the parading should cease. A message was sent to the band in the gallery to cease playing, and it willingly obeyed the injunction, the players being almost exhausted by their severe work in the torrid gallery near the roof. These messages had some effect, but it was impossible for such an uproar to die away in an instant. The State standards in large measure returned to their places, and one hour after its commencement the excitement and noise were subsiding.

The roll of the States then was called for nominating speeches.

"The State of Indiana," said the clerk. John W. Kern arose and yielded the State's place to Kentucky, Representative Ollie James being sent by that State to second the nomination of Mr. Bryan. Mr. Bryan was warmly greeted.

When Mr. James was about to conclude a chorus of "noes" came from delegates all over the floor. Several motions to extend the speaker's time were offered, but he would not consent, saying he would not delay the nomination of William J. Bryan, which would be made in a few minutes. He concluded in a storm of applause.

Mr. James' striking tribute to Mr. Bryan, "Standing among the crowned heads and the great leaders of European politics, like Saul among his brethren, head and shoulders above them all," brought the convention once more to its feet in tumultuous cheering. He declared Mr. Bryan belonged to no party, to no nation, but to all humanity.

NEW LAW FIRM FOR FRANKFORT.

Senator William Lindsay And Judge Edelen.

Will Practice Together In The Future.

BOTH ATTORNEYS OF PROMINENCE.

Judge T. L. Edelen and Senator William Lindsay, two of Frankfort's most distinguished lawyers, have formed a partnership and will practice law together. The partnership will take effect in the next few days, as soon as some of the details can be secured and the new firm has already had its stationery printed.

Senator Lindsay intends to stay in Kentucky where he has a handsome home in Frankfort, and he will make this his headquarters although he expects to practice in New York as he has done during the last several years and where he is still engaged as attorney in several important cases. Judge Edelen is one of the best known lawyers in Kentucky and his ability is acknowledged everywhere. He and former Governor J. Proctor Knott were associated together as attorneys before Gov. Knott was Governor, and for several years after Gov. Knott retired from the executive chair. Judge Edelen has been attorney in many of the most important cases in Kentucky and has frequently argued cases before the Supreme Court of the United States.

The new law firm will be one of the strongest in Kentucky, on account of the prominence of both men. Senator Lindsay is still vigorous and active in his profession, in spite of his years, and he will be actively engaged in all cases which the firm accepts.

SHELBYVILLE WINS.

Shelbyville beat Lawrenceburg Friday by a score of 2 to 0, in a well-played and exciting game.

TO GET VOTES

Franklin County Democrats Begin Work.

Will Thoroughly Organize Whole County.

Leaders Of Both Parties Hard At Work.

WANT RECORD BREAKING MAJORITY.

Democrats of Franklin county are preparing to roll up the largest majority ever given by Franklin county, at the November election, and the first steps toward that end are being taken by the Franklin county Democratic Club, with the assistance of the Young Men's Democratic Club. A meeting of the Franklin County Democratic Club was held last night, at which the nomination of William Jennings Bryan was unanimously endorsed, and the active support of the Democrats of the club was pledged to the nominees. Many of those who were present had not voted the Democratic ticket for several years, and their return to the party means that all factions are going to get together at the November election.

This county has gradually increased its majority for the Democratic ticket, but this year there is going to be a determined effort to break all records with a majority for the ticket which will be the banner vote for Kentucky. Factional fights have been waged in the past, but the sores have healed and everybody is in line for the Democratic ticket. All differences now have been forgotten and there will not be any balking when the voting is done.

A determined campaign will be waged in the whole county, and meetings will be held in every precinct where speaking will win votes for the ticket. Enthusiasm for the Democratic nominees will be awakened by the best speakers in the county, and it is probable that several orators of national fame and prominence will be secured to make speeches in Frankfort during the fall. The campaign will be opened early and waged late, and if hard work will do it, Franklin county will be found leading the other counties in the Democratic majority in proportion to the population.

Organization is to be the keynote of the campaign, and every precinct will be organized, with the strongest men at the head. Fights are won in this day by organization in the precinct, and the men who know how to perfect an organization that fights all the time will have charge of the work this year. Both sides will be represented in the organization and there will be no effort to push one side or the other to the front. Percy Haly, who knows how to get votes by organization; Ben Marshall, Judge Jas. Polsgrove, John Ray and all the county leaders will be in line for the ticket, and will be found working for success. This means a big majority for Bryan, and if every county in the State does as well as this county promises to do, Bryan will carry Kentucky by 20,000 votes.

Mr. Bryan Pleased With The Platform.

"Mr. Bryan said this morning: 'I am very much pleased with the platform. It is clear, specific and strong, and I am grateful to the committee for the work that they have done in stating the issues. I am sure that the platform will greatly strengthen us in the fight upon which we are entering.'"

Bryan Hears Cheers Over The Telephone.

HOME CONNECTED WITH CONVENTION HALL AND HE HEARS THEM YELL.

W. J. Bryan, in the midst of his family and one or two close friends, listened by telephone to the wild demonstration which interrupted the speech of L. J. Dunn, nominating him as the Democratic candidate for President. He heard the voice of Sergeant-at-Arms Martin, the music of bands and voices raised in song. By the magic of electricity and refined acoustics he was a part of the convention.

Permanent Headquarters May Be Established.

DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE WILL BE CALLED TO MEET PROBABLY ON JULY 25.

Henry R. Prewitt, of Mt. Sterling, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, has announced that he would shortly issue a call for a meeting of the committee to be held in Louisville. He said he had not fully determined on the date, but said it would likely be held on July 25. This will be the first meeting of the new committee since the recent Democratic State Convention at Lexington, and matters of much importance to the Democratic party in the State will be transacted.

The question of a secretary will be acted upon, and also the question of opening permanent headquarters of the committee to be maintained until after the election in the fall, and it is also likely that it will be decided by the committee to open permanent headquarters to be maintained the year round, and if such a plan is decided upon, Louisville will likely be the permanent headquarters. George Speer, of Lawrenceburg, is tipped as secretary of the committee, and it is said he has enough pledged votes to insure his election on the first ballot, although a like claim is made by Robert Phillips, of Elizabethtown, who is also a candidate.

Capitol Commission Receives Many Bids.

Bids on the construction of the power house lighting and heating plants, water works and terracing at the new capitol were opened Friday at noon by the Capitol Commission. A sub-committee was appointed to go over the bids and compute them, so that all can be placed on the same footing, and in this way a correct idea can be gained as to which is the best. There are some fifteen bidders, but only two bidders on the contracts as a whole. The committee which is looking over the bids will not be ready to report for several days, and it will probably be the middle of next week before the contracts are awarded.

Many bidders were on hand when the time came to open the bids, and much interest was shown among the representatives of the various concerns here. The bids were opened in the Governor's office, and the full commission was present. The bids were found to be in all sorts of shape. Some bids were only for excavation, and others only for brick work, so that it is impossible now to tell who is the lowest and best bidder.

Will Talk Of How To Handle Convicts.

Gov. Willson has named as delegates to the American Prison Congress, which will meet in Richmond, Va., on November 14, the three Prison Commissioners, Harvey S. McCutchen, Eli H. Brown and Finley E. Fogg; the two wardens of the penitentiaries, Col. E. E. Mudd, of Frankfort, and W. T. Hagerman, of Eddyville; E. H. Doak, superintendent of the School of Reform, and Herman Monroe, jailer of Jefferson county. The conference is held so that those who handle criminals and have charge of prisons can talk over the best way to deal with the convicts.

PAY REFUSED

Governor Refuses To Approve Morris' Claim

For Salary As Agent Of State At Jamestown.

Says Appropriation Was Without Authority.

ALL FORMER VOUCHERS ACCEPTED.

Giving as his reason that the State Board of Agriculture had no right to make the appropriation, Gov. Willson has held up a claim for $100 in favor of Joe Morris, who had charge of Kentucky's exhibit at the Jamestown exposition and Mr. Morris will have to sue to recover his last month's salary. The salary for the previous months was paid Mr. Morris when Gov. Beckham was in the executive chair, but Gov. Willson has refused to acknowledge the debt and will not approve Mr. Morris' voucher.

When the Legislature failed to make an appropriation for the Jamestown Exposition, the State Board of Agriculture decided that, under the act creating the board, which was also a Board of Forestry and Immigration, money could be spent by the board to advertise Kentucky's resources. The board, by resolution, voted $1,000 to aid the movement for a Kentucky building at Jamestown and for a display in the building of Kentucky's natural resources. The plan met with general approval and it was a popular move, the people believing that Kentucky should have its advantages shown to the world. The exhibits were gathered together and sent to the exposition and it was found necessary to employ some one to help gather the exhibits as well as to take charge of them at Jamestown. Mr. Morris was employed for this purpose, and was allowed $100 a month which included his expenses.

The salary was paid without question when Mr. Beckham was Governor and Hubert Vreeland was Commissioner of Agriculture. An opinion was given by Judge T. L. Edelen in which it was held that the board had authority to make such appropriation under the Forestry and Immigration Act. This opinion was accepted without question and the claims were allowed each month and promptly paid. The last claim was presented after Gov. Willson was sworn in and he held it up for further investigation, asking that Mr. Vreeland write him in detail about the appropriation and Mr. Morris' employment. This was done and the opinion of Judge Edelen was shown to the Governor. He held up the claim until Friday, when he told Mr. Morris that he would refuse to approve the claim and it could not be paid. The Governor said that the law did not allow the money to be used in that way and it had been paid without authority. He refused to accept Judge Edelen's opinion, saying that he placed a different construction on the law. For this reason he declined to approve the claim and if Mr. Morris wants his money he will have to sue to get it.

Water Sells For Quarter A Glass At Denver

The heat in the hall and the thick dust stirred during the Bryan demonstration at the Denver convention, and the dense clouds of flash powder caused intense thirst to nearly every one in the great hall, and water was in great demand, selling early in the night at 5 cents a glass, but at 11 o'clock it was selling at two small glasses for 25 cents, says a dispatch. Several small boys busied themselves in supplying the demand, and reaped a harvest of profit.

Denver, Colo., July 10, 4:10 P. M. (Western Time)—(Special)—John W. Kern, of Indiana, is to be Bryan's running mate. He was nominated by the Democrats at Denver in convention assembled, by acclamation, this afternoon, after several candidates had been put in nomination. These candidates were all withdrawn at the last, and the convention gave the Vice Presidential candidate an ovation.

Several candidates were placed in nomination for the Vice Presidency. Gov. Thomas, of Colorado, placed in nomination Charles A. Towne, and the name of Clark Howell, of Georgia, was also presented.

Charles A. Towne withdrew his name from the convention, and spoke for Kern, of Indiana. Hill, of Georgia, withdrew the name of Howells, and seconded the nomination of Kern.

This started the ball to rolling, and in a few minutes Kern was nominated by acclamation.

BIG CONTRACT FOR FORD & JOHNSON CO.

Will Supply Senate Office Building With Furniture.

Prepared To Bid On Kentucky's New Capitol.

JOSEPH R. NEWTON IN FRANKFORT.

The Ford & Johnson Company, which is closely identified with Frankfort, and which has a large plant here, has just secured the contract for supplying the furniture for the new Senate office building, in Washington. The contract will amount to about $100,000, and will be awarded next week to the Ford & Johnson Company. The bids were opened in Washington on Wednesday, and the company was the lowest bidder of the many who entered the competition.

All the furniture which will be used will be of solid mahogany, and the tables, desks and chairs will all be of the handiwork. The desks will cost about $250 each, and each Senator will have a settee ten feet long, handsomely finished and luxurious. The Senate office building will contain a suite of three rooms for each Senator. This will include a bathroom and the furnishings will be elaborate and expensive designs which they submitted to the committee in charge of the letting of the contracts.

The Ford & Johnson Company is preparing to bid on the furniture for Kentucky's new capitol, the contract for which will amount to about $100,000. It is probable that the company will submit designs for furniture as they did at Washington, so that the Capitol Commission can tell how to estimate the cost and the kind of furniture which is wanted.

Joseph R. Newton, who was a resident of Frankfort, but who is now sales manager for the Ford & Johnson Company, with headquarters at Chicago, was here Friday in the interests of the company, and also to see his new son, who is just three days old. Mr. Newton said his company had won the big contract in fair competition, and was ready to bid on the furniture for the capitol here. He returned to Chicago Friday night.

Historic Spade For Commissioner Rankin.

Shining like a new dollar and glorified with ribbons and tassels, the spade used by M. C. Rankin, Commissioner of Agriculture to break the ground for the first buildings on the Kentucky State Fair site, has been delivered to Secretary J. W. Newman, of the State Fair Board, and will be presented to Commissioner Rankin with appropriate ceremonies within the next few days.

The spade has been highly polished and nicked.

BRYAN FARM

Abiding Place Of Busy Man
Who Enjoys Rest.

City Residence In Midst Of 160 Acres of Land.

Home Of Next President Described In Detail.

WIFE HELPS HIM WITH HER ADVICE

When one speaks of the "Bryan farm," it requires an explanation. William Jennings Bryan has built a thoroughly up-to-date city residence in the midst of 160 acres of land. It is surrounded by fields of alfalfa, potatoes and corn, but immediately about the house there is a wide stretch of bluegrass, large enough to make two or three good sized city homes look lost in it. There is a windmill, a barn, arbors and outhouses of all kinds, with every conceivable piece of modern farm machinery extant housed about the place. There are also gardens of clipped plants, running vines and shrubbery and song birds in great numbers and variety. The place is not run to make money, and therefore it is not a farm in the common acceptance of that term, even though it qualified under the above general description of its contents. More truly the Bryan farm is the abiding place of a busy man who delights greatly in rest and quiet.

Fairview lies on a beautiful knoll overlooking the Antelope valley, two miles east of Lincoln. The spot on which the house now stands was part of the original tract of five acres which Mr. Bryan bought in 1893. At that time the plot was bare of trees. To-day several small trees planted by Mr. Bryan give a background to the house and nothing more. In 1897 Mr. Bryan added to his small holding by the purchase of twenty acres more ground. By 1902 the farm had attained a size of thirty-five acres, and since then Mr. Bryan has increased it to 160 acres, ninety-two of which are under cultivation. The present home was built in 1903.

From the outset Mr. Bryan had his own views about the running of a farm. Since then the views of the entire Bryan family about the place have changed somewhat, but they are still individual, and individually collective they form an interesting study.

Divides Work With Wife.

Fairview has never had a boss. Nor has it ever been entirely a co-operative community. Naturally the sex of the occupants has asserted itself in their respective spheres as commonly understood. Mr. Bryan is the recognized head of the household and the farm; Mrs. Bryan has always run the house. Both are managed with a tendency toward decentralization of supreme authority and, strange to say, both ends of the farm have been a great success under this system.

The Bryan family and the Bryan farm are managed on a conference basis. All through his public life Mr. Bryan has made a confidant of his wife. She has been with him on most of his notable campaign tours, studied law with him when he was in college, attended to most of his correspondence in the early days of his career, and, in fact, was his "right-hand-man," if such an appellation can be attributed to an intelligent, capable, womanly helpmate of a manly man.

Mr. Bryan now holds conferences with the hired men on the farm. They are not preceded by orders to report nor by any other preliminary. They occur at the most unexpected times, and in the most unexpected places. The barn, the sty or the green lawn is equally appropriate for these "understandings."

With the range of the farm before them, Mr. Bryan offers suggestions as to the rotation of crops or the use of this or that parcel of land. The hired men are as free to offer suggestions as he. A conclusion is reached and that settles the matter for a whole year. The hired men, mostly in their own time and in their own way, see that the "understandings" are carried out. They are industrious men and do their work well. Without the incentive of moneymaking, there is continual peace throughout the whole place. There is no blow or bluster, no fretting or fuming.

One of the main features of the Bryan home is the immense closed porch. This porch is the product of necessity, because of Nebraska's winds, but it is a real institution. From the outside it looks like a conservatory with its fifteen white-framed windows looking out in a semi-circle. Inside it is the acme of perfection from the viewpoint of comfort. No caller waits outside the door. A fine looking colored boy, clad in blue serge and patent leather shoes, all of the latest cut, receives you at the door, escorts you to a wicker chair, "stand-up, sit down or lay down," as they say in Lincoln, comfortably covered with soft summer-upholsterings.

Never Keeps Guests Waiting.

After a few minutes Mr. Bryan appears. He never keeps anybody waiting unless he is engaged with some other caller. His workshop is down in the basement, the windows of which open upon the ground. There he has his stenographers, his telephones and his papers, and some of his books. There he will hear from Denver every move made by the convention.

Mr. Bryan always smiles when he meets a guest. It is one of those comprehensive smiles made possible by a large mouth. Mr. Bryan has one of the most expressive mouths in existence. This fact is admitted even by the Republicans, and concurred in by most Democrats. It can say anything and yet make no audible sound, but when it speaks its mobility is equally apparent. From the face downward, Mr. Bryan is one of the plainest of men. He still wears the low-cut collar and the Bryan string-bow tie, without which he never again can be complete to his followers. His clothes are neat and clean. The creases in them are not tailor-made, but home-made. They fit the contour of Mr. Bryan's knee-joints better when he sits down. His shoes are just as dusty as yours, which is not very dusty with a Nebraska zephyr cleaning them for you and an alfalfa field handy.

Proud of His Home.

Mr. Bryan loves his farm home and is intensely proud of it. Nobody who sees it can blame him. If he knows you well enough he will say to you in a matter-of-fact way, which illy conceals his just pride: "Come this way with me."

From a compact and comparatively unadorned reception hall, Mr. Bryan leads his guest into his library, which is almost severe in its appointments. From the library you walk into the Orient. Except for the American carpet, wall paper and a few pieces of furniture, Mr. and Mrs. Bryan have filled this room with the gifts they received on their trip about the world.

The Bryan dining room is downstairs. It is in a remish oak from the wainscoting to the ceiling. The woodwork and furniture can hardly be told apart, so complete is the matching. All of the furniture is highly carved, and ecstacy reference to its high quality brought from Mr. Bryan the comment, "It is from Chicago."

To Mr. Bryan Fairview has no price. He probably knows exactly what he has put into it, notwithstanding the fact that some people think he has no business ability or acumen. What he could get out of it does not interest him, except when put in terms of enjoyment, living and working. Most of Mr. Bryan's personal wealth centers in Fairview. As a money maker his newspaper probably is his best investment. Taken by itself, however, Fairview would be a genuine bargain at $75,000.

LEGAL FISHING

As Practiced By Judges Of Court of Appeals.

JUDGE HAZELRIGG PLAYS TRICK
ON JUDGES PRYOR, SET-TLE AND NUNN.

Fishing is a pastime which appeals especially to the legal mind or the mind of any man who works with his brain. It is said, and the fact that nearly every judge of the Court of Appeals is an earnest and ardent fisherman seems to bear this out. Each judge has his own method of fishing and his own favorite spot. Judge Settle, one of the associate justices of the court, was talking fishing the other day and told the following story of how the court once went fishing in Elkhorn.

"We went out early in the morning and divided our forces. With me were Judge Pryor and Judge Nunn and Judge Hazelrigg. Judge O'Rear and one or two others went in another direction, up the creek from us. We fished along all morning and did not get a bite. Not a fish did we catch and we were discouraged. Just before noon a native showed up with a pretty string of fish. He had about fifteen fine ones and we opened negotiations for the purchase of those fish. We did not want to go back without a fish and have the others laugh at us, so we bought the string from the native, paying him $2 for the bunch. Judge Pryor made the man agree to back up any statement that he made concerning the fish and how they had been caught, and the man agreed.

"We reached the camp first, cleaned the fish, and while they were frying and the savory odor was floating in the breezes, Judge Hazelrigg and his party came up. They expressed surprise that we had had such good luck. 'Yes, we had pretty fair luck,' said Judge Pryor, 'but, of course, one has to be skillful to really catch fish. It is not all luck, but requires science. How many did you all catch?' 'Judge Hazelrigg admitted that they had no luck at all and had come back empty-handed.

"Judge Pryor then went on to tell how each of the fish had been caught, giving a graphic description of how he had hauled in the largest one, and how Judge Settle himself had hauled in ten. He said Judge Nunn had been less successful than any of the others and had caught only two.

"Judge Hazelrigg and the others let us go along until we had fully committed ourselves and had strung out long talks about our fishing skill, when Judge Hazelrigg spoke up and said:

"You are awful flars. Now, that man with that string of fish passed us this morning and wanted to sell us those fish. But I said to the others:

'No, we won't buy them. Let him go on down stream and he will pass Settle, Nunn and Pryor and they will buy the fish, and we will have them for dinner without having to pay for them.'"

"That ended our fish tales," said Judge Settle.

Judge Lassing now has a different method of fishing. He is fond of fish, but he is too active and too much on the go all the time to sit down and wait for one of them to swallow a hook, so he adopts a sure and safe plan. He described it the other day.

"When I go fishing I hire a man to use a seine and pay him so much a haul, with the understanding that he can have such fish as I don't want. He makes a few drags through the river and gets plenty of fish, and I pick out those I want and put them in a crib in the river, and when I want fish for supper, I go down to the crib and pick out what I want. That beats the hook and line all hollow."

ASK REQUISITIONS

For Return Of Taylor And Finley From Indiana.

CASES WILL BE CALLED AT NEXT
TERM OF COURT—PARDONS
EXPECTED FOR BOTH.

Requisitions for W. S. Taylor and Charles Finley will be requested of Gov. Willson when the next term of the Franklin Circuit Court convenes and it is not improbable that the Governor will issue pardons to both men and allow them to come back to Kentucky. The cases against Finley and Taylor will be called at the next regular term of this court, and every effort will be made to get the fugitives back for trial. As Governor Willson has said that he believes Yontsey alone is responsible for the murder of William Goebel, it is believed that the Governor would not permit the State to go to the expense of a trial of the two men, but would issue pardons to them.

The last step that can be taken in the case of the Commonwealth against Caleb Powers was taken Monday when Judge J. S. Morris convened his special term of the Scott Circuit Court to call the Powers case. Monday was the day that had been set by the court after the last trial of Powers, for the opening of the special term. The jailer filed the pardon granted by Gov. Willson after so many weeks of study, and the case was ordered closed.

Judge Morris had an order entered for $5,000, the expenses of the trial, and also an order entered returning to Grant Roberts, of this city, the Martin rifle which Yontsey said was used by Jim Howard to kill Gov. Goebel. These steps close the Goebel murder cases, except those of Taylor and Finley.

A Revelation.

It is a revelation to people, the severe cases of lung trouble that have been cured by Foley's Honey and Tar. It not only stops the cough, but heals and strengthens the lungs. L. M. LAWFUL WAR

Waged By Equity Society
Against The Trust.

CAMPBELL CANTRILL SAYS RE-SORT TO FORCE IS NEVER DESIRABLE.

Former State Senator J. Campbell Cantrill, of Georgetown, president of the Kentucky organization of the American Society of Equity, addressed an immense audience at the house at Hopkinsville, and urged farmers to join the society and all citizens to give it their support.

Mr. Cantrill stated that the war on the trust, as far as the society was concerned, was a lawful one, and that a resort to force was never desirable.

The farmers had won their fight by peaceful means and were enjoying the fruits of their victory. An instance of their prosperity, due entirely to organization, the farmers during the recent financial panic had been easy, comfortable and happy while money kings were on their knees begging for currency.

Mr. Cantrill was skeptical concerning the motives of law and order leagues, and was opposed to the use of soldiers in the tobacco districts. Resolutions were passed by the meeting denouncing as detrimental to the interests of the society all lawlessness, especially night riding, and promising to use every effort to uphold the laws and see that they are enforced.

Thousand Hogsheads

Sold By Burley Pool.

BLUEGRASS TOBACCO CO. BUYS A MILLION POUNDS TO RUN FACTORY.

W. J. Loughbridge, one of the officers of the Bluegrass Tobacco Company, of Lexington, made the announcement that his company had purchased 1,000 hogsheads of tobacco from the Burley Tobacco Society, at Winchester, on Monday. Mr. Loughbridge says his firm now has a sufficient supply on hand to run the factory until the crop of 1909 is put on the market.

The deal for this million pounds of tobacco has been on for more than a week, but was only closed last Monday. The purchase included a number of different grades, the price ranging from 9 cents to 16 cents a pound.

Versailles Man Kills

Himself In Cincinnati.

Robert Smith, the third son of Breckinridge B. Smith, a well known Versailles druggist, killed himself in Cincinnati Sunday.

No reason is known here for his rash act. Young Smith had lived in Cincinnati for the past two or three years and came home several months ago on account of the serious illness of his father. He returned to Cincinnati about five days ago, apparently in good spirits.

Robert Smith was 22 years old, very quiet and reserved in manner, having few intimate friends. Besides his father he leaves three brothers and a sister: James Smith, of Baltimore; Walter Smith, of Panama; Paul Smith and Miss Lulu Smith, of Versailles. His body was brought home for burial.

Bob Franklin Wins

Hedges Will Contest

The contest over the will of Mrs. Fannie Hedges ended at 10:30 o'clock Saturday night of last week in the Bourbon Circuit Court, at Paris, and the jury, after being out five minutes, came in with a verdict sustaining the will. Two speeches were made in the case, one by C. J. Bronston, in favor of the contestants, and the other by Robert B. Franklin, to sustain the will. By the will, Mrs. Russell Mann gets the $9,000 residence she now occupies.

MAYO'S VOTE

Reputed By Rest Of Kentucky Delegation.

Delegation Cannot Understand His Action.

Stood With Bryan And Against Guffey.

OLLIE JAMES A PROMINENT FIGURE.

J. J. C. Mayo, of Kentucky, the representative of this State on the Committee on Credentials at the National Convention, voted to seat the Guffey delegates from Pennsylvania, and thereby started a scrap in the Kentucky delegation, being repudiated by the vote of Kentucky, which was cast for the report against the seating of Guffey. Mr. Mayo surprised everybody by the way he voted. Regarding his action, John D. Wakefield, in the Louisville Times of Thursday, said:

Kentucky's delegates stood with Bryan on the floor of the National Convention last night and repudiated the action of J. J. C. Mayo, one of the State's big six, who signed the minority report of the Committee on Credentials to seat Guffey's delegates from Pennsylvania, and in addition Col. Haldeman jumped on Richmond Pearson Hobson with both feet for making a "war talk" and got rounds of applause when he decried Hobson's assertion that America was not prepared to defend itself.

Prompt to resent any suggestion of opposition to Bryan in the Bluegrass State, Kentucky's delegation gave a sharp rebuke to Mayo. Mayo, in the Credentials Committee, had cast his vote as representative of Kentucky for the seating of National Committeeman Guffey, of Pennsylvania, when the unseating of Guffey was the thing most desired by Bryan.

In the convention last night Chairman Ollie James polled the State's vote and publicly reversed the vote of Mayo to the tune of deafening cheers on the part of the Bryan-mad assembly. Mayo was not in the convention hall and neither was Senator Paynter, who was said to be in sympathy with Mayo. Gov. Beckham was absent in the Resolutions Committee. All the remaining delegates voted to repudiate Mayo.

On summons from Charles W. Bryan, a brother of W. J. Bryan, Congressman James went to the room of the prospective nominee's brother late yesterday afternoon. He was informed by Bryan's friends that Mayo had cast the vote of Kentucky for Guffey. In a trice, the big chairman of Kentucky's delegates had messengers rushing all over Denver locating the State delegates. He instantly took a poll of them, and announced that with the possible exception of United States Senator T. H. Paynter, all Kentucky was demanding that the vote of Mayo be reversed.

Shock for Leaders.

To James and Col. W. B. Haldeman the action of Mayo came as a direct shock for they had not believed that the Eastern Kentucky millionaire, in spite of his friendship for Guffey and John T. McGraw, of West Virginia, would try in the face of what was considered to be the wish of Kentucky from the Big Sandy to Fulton. To National Committeeman Urey Woodson, Mayo's action did not come unpleasantly. "I have served long with Guffey on the National Committee," said he. "He and I are among the old timers. This is absolutely the only point, however, where I differ with Haldeman and James."

Following the spread of the news concerning Mayo's vote, many of Kentucky's delegates declared that they smelled a rat long after he had vanished into his hole. They say that when Senator Paynter, at the organization meeting of the delegation, on Monday, had requested that Mayo be awarded unanimously the credentials place, a preconceived plan was carried through. The delegates declare that Mayo well knew that Kentucky, above all States in the Union, was loyal to Bryan, and that in voting for Guffey Mayo had not been a faithful representative of the State.

During the remarkable Bryan demonstration Ollie James started the march of State delegations by seizing the standard of the Kentucky delegation. With his strong right arm he snapped the brass pole and holding aloft the standard of the Bluegrass State, rushed with it to the platform. John W. Vreeland and others went to his side. A big painting of Bryan was carried down the aisle by the "Nebraska Volunteers" and State after State followed Kentucky and the convention went mad, while the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home," and "Maryland, My Maryland" caused hats, coats and other articles of wearing apparel to fall from the balconies to the pit and back again.

Tribute to Woodson.

A meeting of the Kentucky delegation will be held this afternoon or tonight. At this time the delegates will adopt a resolution commending Urey Woodson for the splendid arrangements and provision for all Kentuckians. During the meeting Boss Murphy's Tammany Tigers and Roger Sullivan's Chicago bands have asked for the privilege of serenading the Kentucky delegates.

Out here in Denver the designation of Ollie James, of Kentucky, does not go. It is just Ollie James. Everybody knows James and as Bryan's representative he occupies a seat by the side of Temporary Chairman Bell throughout the proceedings of the convention.

Kentucky has played such a conspicuous part in the proceedings of the convention that "My Old Kentucky Home" is played as a national air. During the great Bryan demonstration a half dozen brass bands brought the thousands of people to their feet time and again by striking up the air that so thrills Kentuckians when they are away from home.

In a speech to a lobby full of Democrats at the Brown Palace, Thomas Drewry, of Louisville, proposed Roosevelt for Vice President on the Democratic ticket. He said Roosevelt was entitled to second place for he had done more to vitalize and make effective the principles of Government enunciated by Bryan in the last twelve years than all other apostles of a progressive Government. Drewry said he came from a State where prohibition thrived, but where the prohibitionists "took theirs often and straight." He said, under Watterson's leadership, Kentucky would give Bryan 30,000 majority.

Senator Paynter is a good member of the millionaire's club and dines frequently out here with Senator Guggenheim, who has so many millions he hasn't time to count them.

Dining Room Shower For The Hospital.

KINGS DAUGHTERS WILL HAVE A RECEPTION IN HOME FOR THE SICK.

On the 16th of July, twelve years ago, the order of King's Daughters was first formed in Frankfort, the little band of ten taking reverently upon themselves the King's name, and setting about doing good "in His name."

The band has increased in membership to eighty-four, and as to the good they have done in their twelve years, they want the public to come and see. It is one of the things that needs to be seen to be appreciated. Realizing this fact, the King's Daughters will have an informal reception at their hospital on the afternoon and evening of July 16th, and cordially extend to everybody an invitation to come and see them. The King's Daughters have sent out the following:

"The reception will partake of the nature of a kitchen and dining room shower. The hospital is in need of cooking utensils and dining room service, and you will enjoy the occasion all the more, you know, if you disregard Mrs. Philpott's example, and 'take some frost.' Bring then, your offering, be it small or large, and give it 'in His name.'"

Shelbyville Boy Makes Good In Texas League.

In a write-up of the Waco, Texas, team, the Waco Times-Herald has the following to say of Douglas Harbison, the Shelbyville boy, who is making good:

"Douglas Harbison, Waco's first baseman, was born in 1837, and is only 21 years old. He is the youngest first baseman in the league, and is probably the youngest in the United States in as high company. He began his career as a professional in Waco last year, playing every position on the infield, from time to time, and doing excellent work in all. When he began this season it was expected he would play second base, but the club had no other man who could play first, so Harbison was assigned to that position. He has done so well there that there has never been a thought of making a change. He batted 210 last year and fielded 976. He is beating both this year. Waco has won the last 19 out of 24 games played."

Since the above was written a special from Waco says that Douglas has been sold to the Detroit American League team.

Bar Association Displeased With Governor.

BECAUSE HE VETOED BILL RAISING STANDARD OF LAWYERS.

Wilson's action in vetoing the bill providing a new system for admission of applicants for license to practice law was condemned by the State Bar Association, at the annual meeting in Louisville. The bill, known as the Milliken bill, provided that the Court of Appeals should have control of the admission of candidates to the bar, and should lay down the qualifications. The bar association was in session three days this week.

The most important paper submitted at the present meeting was that of the Hon. J. A. Sullivan, of Richmond, in which he took exception to the action of Governor Wilson in vetoing the bill to raise the standard of admission to the bar, as passed at the last Legislature. The report was submitted by Mr. Sullivan as chairman of the Committee on Legal Education and Admission to the Bar.

The report deals exhaustively with the subject, and contains the astounding statement that Kentucky is one of the few States where no previous study is a requisite to an application for admission to the bar.

With reference to the action of Gov. Wilson in vetoing the Milliken Burnham bill, passed by both houses raising the standard for admission to the bar, Mr. Sullivan said:

"To the amazement of your committee and the profession at large, on March 19, 1908, and after the adjournment of the General Assembly, our worthy Governor vetoed the bill without having given any notice to the introducers of the bill in the House and Senate, to your committee, or to this association. We have the kindest feelings for the Governor, personally, and respect for his ability and professional standing, but your committee, in making a true report, must say that, in our judgment, the veto was hasty, ill-advised and arose from a misunderstanding of the purposes and provisions of the bill."

"The reasons given by the Governor for vetoing the bill are two-fold: First, that there is no necessity for the bill or for raising the standard of admission to the bar in Kentucky. 'On this point the Governor said: 'I do not believe that many of the instances of misconduct on the part of lawyers arise from those who would be excluded by this kind of examination. The incompetent are rapidly sifted out, anyhow, and this measure does not seem so necessary as to justify the creation of another office with annual expenses.'"

"The opinion of the Governor in this regard is in opposition to the judgment of both houses of the General Assembly, which passed the bill; in opposition to the recommendation of this association overwhelmingly, and sometimes unanimously, expressed at every annual meeting since its organization; in opposition to the recommendations of the National Bar Association and the legislative enactments of every State and Territory in the American Union, excepting six."

"The second reason assigned for the veto is that it creates three new offices to be paid a salary of $200 a year each."

"The Governor overlooked the fact that the bill expressly provided in section 5 that each applicant, at the time of applying for examination, shall pay a fee of $10. This fund would far more than have paid the salaries and expenses under this bill."

"Your committee is, therefore, compelled to believe and to report that if the Governor had given this bill full consideration, or had in his possession fuller information of the needs and effect of the Milliken-Burnham bill, and the enactment of such legislation in other States and Territories, that he would not, by executive veto, have nullified the efforts of years of the Kentucky Bar Association, of which he is so prominent and worthy a member, and prevented the enactment of a law so much needed for the protection of the public, as well as the profession itself."

In concluding, the report urges that the association continue with increased vigor the efforts to have such laws enacted, and urges that no applicant be eligible to stand examination for admission to the bar unless a graduate of a reputable college or university, or of a first class county high school, to become effective after July 1, 1911, at which time county high schools will have been established in every county one year.

Frankfort merchants protest that business goes elsewhere and that the home people do not deal with them. A man was telling the other day of an experience he had that may throw some light on the reason for this failure to get business. The man stepped into the telephone office to pay his bill. He had a $5 note and could not pay his bill because the telephone manager could not change the five dollars. The same man then went to the laundry to pay his bill there so he could have the laundry sent home. The laundry has a rule that all payments must be made in advance and the only way to get the laundry is to pay for it in advance. The man in charge of the laundry office was unable to tell the customer the amount of his bill and he had to make three trips before he could pay for the laundry and have it delivered. The same man went into a cigar store and was unable to buy a cigar because the proprietor was unable to change a dollar.

In no other city in the country is there a laundry which will not allow a man to pay by the month, provided his credit is known to be good. The Frankfort laundries have this rule and the majority of the men in the city send their laundry to Dayton, O., as they do not care to be worried by having to chase around to the laundry office to pay the bill and then be told that the amount of it is not known. A good deal of the time it is not the fault of the Frankfort people that they do not deal with Frankfort merchants.

The convention at Denver did as everybody knew it would do. It nominated Bryan on the first ballot, with great enthusiasm, and the other names which were presented were put before the convention merely to complement the two men mentioned.

Bryan should have been nominated. He was the strongest candidate. No other man could have polled the strength that he could, and no other man could have held together the various factions of what once was, and which again will be, the Democratic party. It was Bryan or nobody in the minds of too many people who have followed Bryan for years, and who would follow nobody else.

The way in which Bryan was nominated augers well for success at the polls. The fighting which was done beforehand is better than no fight, for Democrats always work better after they have had a little fight in the convention which names the candidates. Now, if the nominee can be taught a little caution and to keep his mouth shut until the voting is done, the Democrats are fairly certain of winning the election and beating Taft.

Frankfort was one of the few cities in the State where fireworks were allowed on the Fourth, the city authorities barring them in nearly every place, even the smaller towns. As a result of the celebration of the day here several persons will go through life with scars to recall July 4, 1908, and it is only chance their several graves were not filled. The American public is learning the frightful cost of the usual noisy Fourth of July celebration and is changing its programme. The real meaning of the day has been lost almost entirely, and it is now nothing more than a holiday, on which one goes on picnics or blows one's self and other people with firecrackers or giant powder. The children, at least, might be taught that July marks the beginning of the United States and is always to be remembered for the blessings which flow from the act of independence which was consummated on that day in 1776.

The need for stock pens in Frankfort was brought to the attention of the people of Frankfort again last Monday, when the cows and the calves and the horses and the mules again took possession of the streets and the merry auctioneer worked overtime.

The Pessimist Erstwhile The Optimist By A. R. D.

"Good and bad are but names very readily transferable to that or this. I am ashamed to think how easily we capitulate to badges and names, to large societies and dead institutions.

"What I must do is all that concerns me, not what the people think. This rule, equally arduous in actual and in intellectual life, may serve for the whole distinction between greatness and meanness. It is the harder because you will always find those who think they know what is your duty better than you know it. It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude to live after your own; but the great man is he who in the midst of the crowd keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude."

Ralph Waldo Emerson, in his essay on self-reliance, wrote this many years ago. It applies to-day. Emerson followed the principles he laid down and he was great. He stood above the crowd and lived his life according to the dictates of his conscience. He left a treatise which should be read by everybody, at least once a month. It would make men and women of us and the world would be a better place in which to live. The whole essay teems with independence, and would free the world from senseless convention.

In this day of railroad agitation, one would think the railroads would adopt a policy of conciliation instead of antagonism and would try to win the people to their side of the question, which means so much to them. But they don't. At least in the South they don't. Some railroads have seen that it pays to be courteous and have forced their employees to treat the passengers with patience and consideration. It does pay and as an instance of it one finds that the Pennsylvania railroad gets the passenger traffic for this reason largely. The head of that system requires conductors, porters and everybody to be polite and unfailingly courteous.

Without competition, in the main, and with their passengers forced to travel over their lines or stay at home, the Southern railroads are independent and the trainmen usually uncivil. A notable instance is the dining car service on the Queen & Crescent and one conductor in particular. This conductor proceeds on the theory that the passengers must eat in his car or go hungry, and it is not necessary to treat them with any more consideration than if they were day laborers being fed in a lumber camp. One goes into the dining car and finds a seat the best one can, the conductor and the waiter paying no attention to one at all, until after one has been seated, and then the conductor finds another seat and insists upon the passenger taking that one. This conductor also talks to the passengers like they were servants and directs that they do thus and so, as though he was supreme commander of the universe and his orders must be obeyed. A restaurant run on the same plan would have no diners within two weeks, but the Q. & C. dining car officials probably go on the theory that, the passengers being hungry, they will eat, whether they are treated well or not. It is a bad theory. There are other roads which may be used and there are passengers making short runs who can wait until Lexington or Cincinnati is reached before eating, that they may eat in comfort and be treated decently.

The people rule. They may be doubted, and it may seem that the leaders of one or the other party are really in control, but they are not. The people actually control this country, and the people have been against the railroads because the railroads have been against the people, apparently. What little consideration the traveling public receives is extended because railroad commissions have required it. But for the railroad commissions, passengers would ride in box cars and would get nothing but insults for their money. All this railroad agitation is due in a large measure to the fact that when a man of small proportions is clothed with authority and a uniform, he gets it into his head that he is the power behind the throne, and suffers from enlargement of the cranium to such an extent that he becomes a tyrant.

Another thing that is responsible for the bad treatment received by passengers, is the proneness of the American public to submit to inconvenience, discomfort and discourtesy without protest. The average person traveling, will stand almost anything and even if he does kick he kicks in a futile sort of a way, where it is ineffective. Instead of reporting to the head of the department involved, the traveler kicks to his fellow passengers or to the man who has offended. He promises to report the matter to the governing authority, but by the next morning he has forgotten the incident and lets it go. In a dining car there is a printed notice on the menu, that any inattention is to be reported to the superintendent of dining cars, but the passenger usually thinks it is too much trouble or he does not want any one to lose his job so he does not report and the offending official goes on offending until he becomes arrogant and insufferable and then the proper official hears of it and a new job must be secured.

"Why did the fly fly?" The conventional answer to this absurd conundrum is "because the spider spied her." That is incorrect. The fly flew just because he was a fly. Having wings he flies. He has no motive or air or object in flying. He just flies. Then having legs he walks. Again he has no purpose in walking. In fact the fly is the one thing in the world that is without a definite purpose in life. The mosquito is a pest and a nuisance, but he does not bite as the fly flies. The mosquito has a purpose in his existence, and when a mosquito alights on a person it is with the desire for blood, which is its food. But the fly lights on a person just because he has nothing to gain from being on a person and surely derives no gain or enjoyment from meandering over a person's nose or toes. A fly is just utterly and absolutely senseless and altogether frivolous. The fly serves only one purpose—the fly is an irritant and that is all. The fly was supposed to be a scavenger, but recent science has found that the fly serves no such purpose and is not only useless as a disposer of filth, but is even a menace to life by reason of his habits, and germ carrying propensities. The Egyptians were punished with a plague of flies and perhaps that is where the fly of to-day comes from, for he certainly is a plague and the only thing he does is to make human beings learn patience.

This year, for some reason, there are millions of flies everywhere. Last summer the flies were scarce, but this year they have made up for lost time and there is an overproduction. The flies swarm and buzz and walk about and crawl over suffering humanity until that man, especially if he be bald-headed, who can save his temper and be a Christian, is indeed a person of force and character. Price of Tobacco Causes Small Factory To Close.

CANNOT DO BUSINESS WITH THE CROP SELLING AT PRESENT EQUITY RATE.

The Kentucky Leaf Tobacco Company, which has been running a factory in Lexington employing about fifteen hands, for several years, closed down this week and will retire from business on account of the high prices which are asked for pooled tobacco of the Burley Society, which is now the only available supply on the market. James Slade, manager of the company, states that, on account of the high prices they were compelled to pay for the raw product the company has been losing money for several months on its output and that it is therefore decided to abandon the business and close up the factory.

"The American Tobacco Factory and the big independent companies can buy a large stock of tobacco and hold it until it is needed," said Mr. Slade, "but we little fellows have to buy stock in small quantities, as it is required, and as most of the tobacco now offered by the Burley Tobacco Society is of high grade, the prices are too high for us to pay and manufacture our product at a profit. A number of the little fellows all over the country will probably drop out as we have done."

Taft Writes To Capitol Taft Club.

The Capitol Taft Club, of which Auditor Frank P. James is president, has received a letter from William H. Taft, the Republican nominee for President. When Mr. Taft was nominated the local Taft Club, which is composed largely of the State officials and employees, wrote a letter of congratulation to Mr. Taft. The letter from Mr. Taft was an acknowledgment of the receipt of the letter.

One Organization For All Tobacco Societies.

PROPOSED CONSOLIDATION OF ALL DISTRICT BRANCHES IN FIGHT ON TRUST.

Representatives of all the tobacco associations of Kentucky and Indiana and a part of Tennessee, met in Bowling Green this week for the purpose of bringing about a consolidation of all the tobacco organizations of the State. About fifty delegates were present, and the matter was referred back to the local associations with a recommendation for the selection of delegates to assemble in Bowling Green August 20, to draft a constitution for the consolidated organization.

Among prominent people present were Clarence Lebus, president of the Burley Growers' Association; Commissioner of Agriculture M. C. Rankin, H. F. Ray, of Lake, Ind.; Joel Fort, of Clarksville, Tenn., and Miss Alice Lloyd, of Mason county. Miss Lloyd spoke to a large crowd at the court house that night.

Night Riders Now Number 10,000.

REPORTS RECEIVED AT FRANK- FORT INDICATE THAT THEY ARE STRONGER.

Gov. Willson, Adj. Gen. P. P. Johnston and Maj. Bassett, who is in command of the State troops on duty in Western Kentucky, held a conference in the Governor's office lasting for more than an hour, but at its conclusion none of the three would talk regarding what would be done in regard to the latest outbreak of the night riders. Gov. Willson said nothing of public interest was done and the policy would be to lie low and say nothing, but do things. Maj. Bassett reported to the Governor on the situation in Western Kentucky. He would not talk about what is being done, but it is known that the soldiers are under orders from the Governor to do everything in their power to break up the night riders, and the soldiers will be used to enforce law and order. It is said that the night riders' organization is growing stronger, and reports which come here are to the effect that the number is now close to 10,000, with the leaders bending every effort to increase the membership.

In one of the poorest exhibitions the National game ever witnessed here, the Lawmakers defeated the Shelbyville boys Wednesday at Glenwood Park by a score of 12 to 8. Both teams played rotten ball from beginning to end, and every man that came to bat landed on the ball for a good long drive. "Little Dick" Crutcher was in the box for the home bunch, and was as wild as a March hare, allowing fourteen hits. Hemphill and Saunders did the pitching for the visitors and we got fifteen hits off of the two.

The Lawmakers took the Shelbyville into camp Tuesday afternoon to the tune of 3 to 2, at the latter place. Cornell was on the firing line for Frankfort, and pitched the best game of the season, only allowing five hits, and he had the Millers guessing at all stages of the game. Hart, Shelbyville's latest "find," did the twirling for the other side, and while he pitched a good game, the Lawmakers landed on him pretty freely, getting nine hits that counted. Steele, our second sacker led the bunch in batting. Out of three times up, he fell on three good ones. Chapman got two hits, Leo Angermier two and Louis Angermier two. Some of the fans here claim that the "umps" was a little "raw" at times and gave his home boys all the best of the decisions.

"Dude" Nell should know ere this that he can't play ball, and should keep out of the game altogether. He is not only a drawback to every member of the team, but to the large crowds that attend the games. We think that "Chicken" should read the riot act to him good and proper, and inasmuch as Kennedy is forced to hire some one to assist him at the gate every game, we see no reason why the "Gallant Dude" should not shine there. It is the universal opinion among the local fans that Nell has lost more games for the Lawmakers this season than all the rest of the team combined. Frankfort is taking more interest in the game this year than before, but should Nell insist on going into the games, "Old Chick" will lose many a two-bit piece in the future. Personally, Gilum Nell is one of the finest young men in the world, but he simply can't play base ball, especially with as fast company as that which goes to make up the Bluegrass League, and he should be content to retire to the gate and help gather in the "grapes."

Some of the Frankfort team are inclined to keep late hours and indulge in the wine cup a little too freely for their own good, as well as for the good of the club. Late hours and booze has caused more players' downfall than everything else in the world combined. There is not a man in the Lawmakers' club but who hopes that some day he will get into faster company, and eventually land a big league job and make a name for himself. Right here we want to tell you that you can't do this by the booze route. No one has ever been known to reach this end by looking too long upon the wine while it was red, and we are here to tell you ball players to cut it out while there is yet time—don't wait until you are down and out—do it TODAY.

"Rasty" Wright proved to his many admirers here that he hasn't forgotten how to pitch last Sunday. When he found out that he had Meeks' men at his mercy, he let up on the visitors and threw straight balls over the plate in order to give our boys some much needed practice in the field. Old "Rasty" is one of the most reliable hitters in our club, and whenever we need a good drive to save the game, we can always rely on the "Mayor of Hatton" to bring in the necessary tally.

By poor fielding by "Dude" Nell and an unfair umpire, the Lawmakers were defeated at Versailles Saturday morning by a score of 5 to 4. Kennedy's sluggers certainly handed the Aristocrats a warm one on Saturday afternoon at Glenwood Park, when they beat them to the tune of 13 to 5, and could have added more tallies, but felt sorry for the visitors. Frankfort gave the Versailles boys another good strong defeat on Sunday afternoon, with old "Rasty" Wright in the box, the score being 15 to 4.

Already plans for next year's ball team are being discussed by the local fans, pro and con. It is the general opinion that a stock company should be formed and run the club strictly business principles. It is a foregone conclusion that there will be no trouble in organizing a company with at least $1,000 paid-up stock, and if more is needed, we believe there will be no trouble to make the fans "cough up." There is no reason why a stock company couldn't make some money out of a first-class ball team here.

The Newark and Jersey City teams played a nineteen inning game this week without a run being made on either side. This is the longest game that has been played this season.

All this talk about professional umpires is hot air, and brought about by such kickers as the bunch from Lexington and Richmond. In the first place, the clubs are not making more than expenses out of the games now, and should they decide to employ high salaried men to officiate at the games, there will be several clubs that will come out at the little end of the horn. We know that we have the best and fairest umpire, in Tommy Newman, of any city in the State, and we hope that "Dude" and "Chicken" will hold out for the present system, no matter what the chronic kickers from Richmond and Lexington say. If they are not satisfied, they can pull out of the league, as there are several towns that would like to take their places. A strange umpire would fare pretty badly at some of the games if he tried to show his authority too much, and this is nearly always the case with "official umps." Let well enough alone and play ball.

Ollie Peed, who has been playing first base for the Lexington Thoroughbreds, has left the club to embark in the grocery business at his old home—Sharpsburg.

The Richmond Pioneers will be here Sunday with one of the strongest clubs they have gotten together this year. They have secured many fast men especially for this game and are out for blood. They will bring a big crowd of rooters along to help them out. We don't see how we could possibly strengthen our team, and should the Lawmakers go down in defeat it will be an accident.

"Tommy" Gainey Newman has been offered a position as umpire in the American Association, but declined on account of having to umpire behind the bat. The Association has been watching his work in the Bluegrass League this year, and have had men here on several different occasions to watch him. They have all reported to headquarters that he is by far the best ever. Being so anxious to secure Mr. Newman's services, the Association sent a man here this week to try and persuade him to accept. The salary attached is a great big one, but "Tommy" says he will remain at home.

The Lawmakers have signed another pitcher in the person of "Jocko" O'Bannon, of Louisville, who will report for duty Sunday. He is said to be one of the best pitchers in the State, and will go into the box at Shelbyville Monday.

The Lawmakers will have some hard work next week, playing four games away from home and one here. They go to Shelbyville on Monday, Versailles Tuesday, Richmond Wednesday, Lexington Thursday and play Versailles here Friday. Kennedy's boys are confident that they will take three out of the five games with ease, while some of them think that they will sweep the slate clean.

The Lexington Thoroughbreds are crowing considerably over their new find in Pitcher Turner, and are claiming that he is the best ever. This "wonderful" twirler is playing under an assumed name, as he is a college player. His name is Candill, and we will admit that he can throw a pretty fair game of ball, but he is in too fast company when he tackles Frankfort's Lawmakers, and we will prove this assertion to the doubting Thomases the next time we cross bats with the "kickers" from Lexington.

Manager "Tommy" Sheets, of the Lexington base ball club, is negotiating with Wahoo, the crack Indian first baseman, whom he has hopes of securing to take Allie Peed's place at first base. Wahoo is at present the utility man of the Canton Club, in the Ohio-Pennsylvania League, and if he signs a local contract will add much strength to the Lexington team.—Lexington Leader.

Typographical errors are the source of much profanity and the cause of many a good Methodist falling from grace, but there is a case where a typographical error coined a new word which has passed into the vocabulary of all baseball writers. Who has ever heard of a "bingle" in an account of a baseball game? A "bingle" at the psychological point? A bingle is a short one-base hit. This is how the word originated. A gentleman at present a resident of Bowling Green caused it. The Messenger's Linotype operator was working on the Philadelphia Inquirer on the "head" case. There occurred the line "Blank's Single Won the Game." A typographical error made the word "bingle" instead of "single." It looked good to the baseball editor, and the word passed into the language.—Bowling Green Messenger.

HUNTS SOMETIMES.

"John Smith" Does Not Fish All The Time.

STORY TOLD OF MAN WHO IS REALLY FOND OF USING POLE AND LINE.

One of the crowds which was sitting out in front of the Capital, the coolest place in Frankfort on a hot day, being reminded of a fish story, related the following concerning a man who lives in the eastern part of the State, and who will be called John Smith, although that is not his name. Smith conducts a jewelry and watch repair shop and his wife has a millinery store in the same place in this town. One Monday morning a man walked into the shop and said, according to the narrator of the story:

"Good morning, Mrs. Smith. Where is John?"

"He's fishing."

"Well, I have a watch here I want him to fix. Tell John I'm going away the latter part of the week and want that watch before I go. Tell him that I will come for it Wednesday and hope he will have it fixed by that time."

Wednesday morning came, and the owner of the watch walked in and said:

"Good morning, Mrs. Smith. Where is John?"

"He's fishing."

"Did he fix that watch?"

"No, I think not," Mrs. Smith replied.

"Well, tell John that I'm going away on the noon train Saturday, and I must have that watch before I go. Tell him if it is not done I will have to take it anyway."

On Saturday the worried owner went again to the shop. Mrs. Smith was sewing and rocking and humming a tune. John was not in sight.

"Good morning, Mrs. Smith. Where's John?"

"He's fishing."

"Mrs. Smith, does John fish all the time?" exclaimed the man, irritated beyond silence.

"Oh, no," replied Mrs. Smith, "he hunts some of the time."

FIRE AT CUNNINGHAM.

The carriage house of Col. John Cunningham, near Cunningham Station, was burned to the ground with its contents. It contained a handsome carriage, good rockaway, double buggy, two sets of double harness and one set of single harness. The loss is nearly $1,000, with no insurance. It is supposed to have been of incendiary origin.

UNKNOWN POISON

Kills Fish and Turtles in Elkhorn Creek.

REWARD OFFERED FOR SOLUTION OF MYSTERY—MAY BE INDICTMENTS.

Fishes, snakes, crawfish, and other things living in Elkhorn creek, have been killed during the last few days in some mysterious manner and way and the fishermen, of whom Frankfort has a large number, are stirring things up in an effort to find out what has caused the destruction. For miles the banks of Elkhorn are strewn with fish and snakes and turtles, all dead and decaying, and in several places where the backwater forms an eddy, fish fill the water so thickly that they reach clear to the bottom of the creek. In front of Col. James Andrew Scott's camp, two wagon loads of fish were lodged in an eddy, and he had men with rakes engaged in shoving them out into the current so that the decaying bodies would be carried off.

Much speculation is being indulged in as to the cause of the sudden death of the fish, and distilleries and oil refineries are being held responsible. It is said by fishermen that the fish seemed to have been killed suddenly, during the last rise when there was a heavy rain just at the forks of the Elkhorn. As the rise went down, the creek it left in its wake thousands of dead fish and even the snakes and turtles were killed. The sheriff of the county, Hieatt, has offered a reward for information which will lead to the solution of the question of what has caused the fish to die. If it is found that a distillery or oil refinery has caused the destruction of the fish, the guilty parties will be indicted and an effort made to convict them.

The matinee racing season at the Gentleman's Driving Club Park will be formally opened Saturday when the first races will be held. Manager Albert Kirtley, of the track, stated last night that he is now engaged in preparing the program, which will be one of the best that was ever offered at such events. The racing is to be not only of trotters and pacers, but one or two running events will be sandwiched in between the wagon heats.

GOEBEL MONUMENT

Will Be Erected In Cemetery At Frankfort Soon.

CONTRACTORS COMPLETE WORK AND WILL SHIP STONES IN THIRTY DAYS.

The $15,000 monument to be erected in the Frankfort cemetery over the grave of the late William Goebel has at last been completed. The firm of William Adams & Son, contractors, of Lexington, have had word from Barry, Vermont, that the monument, just completed of Barry granite at the quarry there, is now ready for shipment. It will require several freight cars to transport the ponderous stones comprising the base to Kentucky. The statue which is to surmount it and which is a heroic figure of Goebel, about ten feet high, was finished some time ago in New York, by Nelhaus, the sculptor, and has been awaiting the completion of the granite monument before shipment from New York. Both the monument and statue will reach Frankfort within the next thirty days. Upon their arrival here, they will be placed in position in the cemetery and the Goebel Monument Commission called together to inspect the work and arrange the date for the unveiling ceremonies. No intimation has been given when the unveiling will take place, but it will probably not be until next fall, and perhaps not until the next anniversary of Goebel's death in February.

Senator James B. McCreary, who is now in Denver attending the National Democratic Convention, is chairman of the Goebel Monument Commission, and it devolves upon him to call a meeting of the commission to view the monument when it is set up. Sculptor Nelhaus, who executed the statue for this monument, also has the contract for the Goebel statue to be erected in or near the new State capitol, for which the last Legislature of the Beckham administration appropriated $25,000.

CAN PICK JOBS.

Several Places Open For Paroled Convict.

FARMER GILBERT IS A NATURAL MECHANIC—LEARNED WHILE IN PENITENTIARY.

When a convict is released from the penitentiary, he usually has a hard time finding employment, and the fact that he has been in prison frequently prevents him from getting work, but this rule does not apply in the case of Farmer Gilbert, who was paroled this week from the penitentiary here, and who will be released within thirty days. Several jobs are open to Gilbert, and he can take his pick of three right here in Frankfort, any one of which will pay him $100 a month. Gilbert is a natural mechanic. He can mend anything that is broken, and machinery is an open book to him. Recently the press at the Kentucky State Journal broke down, and there was no one in Frankfort who knew how to mend it. Permission was secured to take Gilbert to the Journal office, and in a short time the press was fixed all right, although Gilbert had never seen a press like it. It was this way with everything. Gilbert knows machinery.

It is said that when Gilbert was brought to the penitentiary he did not know how to do anything but shoot and make moonshine whisky. He was an adept at that, and was one of the best rifle and revolver shots in the mountains, which is saying a good deal for his ability to shoot straight. Gilbert was sent to prison on the charge of murdering a man in Breathitt county. He was convicted on circumstantial evidence, and it is very doubtful if he killed the man. He was sentenced for life, and went to work in the prison with resignation. He was found to be a mechanic and was given charge of machinery. He soon learned all the machinery in the prison and it is said, by the guards, that he can mend any piece of machinery ever made, after he has examined it a little while. The paroles are not effective for thirty days after the Board of Prison Commissioners has granted them, so Gilbert will have to stay in the penitentiary for a while yet.

The man who fears he will do more than his salary calls for, will never have much salary to call for.

CLEAR MYSTERY

Surrounding Murder Of Woman At Hots Springs.

MRS. ADA REICHERS LIVED IN FRANKFORT WHILE HUSBAND WAS EMPLOYED HERE.

The coroner's jury which investigated the mysterious murder of Mrs. Ada Reichers, of Fort Worth, Tex., whose brains were battered out some time last Monday in a cottage where she dwelt with her three young children, returned a verdict today that she came to her death at the hands of A. M. Bannister and that the crime was unjustifiable, says a Hot Springs dispatch to the Courier-Journal.

Bannister is an itinerant piano-tuner, had been there about a month, and boarded next door to Mrs. Reichers. On the day of the murder, Bannister took the two little boys and 9-year-old daughter of the murdered woman to a suburban park, where he deserted the boys. They miraculously wandered back home, and being unable to gain admission, were taken care of over night by a neighbor.

A witness testified at the hearing that he met Bannister and the little girl in Little Rock Tuesday night, and aided the former to pawn a ring for $20. The ring was introduced at the inquest and identified as having belonged to the deceased.

Gov. Pindall tonight offered $250 reward for the capture of the murderer. The husband of the dead woman, and her father, J. N. Young, of Terrell, Tex., arrived today. The former, in an interview, said: "When they find R. G. Wade, the first husband of Mrs. Reichers, between here and the swamps of Alabama, they will have found the man who murdered my wife." It is known that Wade and Bannister were boyhood friends.

Documents in possession of the coroner indicate Mrs. Reichers and her husband, who has the contract for the brick work on the new capitol at Frankfort, Ky., had been involved in domestic troubles. Developments which may involve various parties are expected by the authorities. The body of the victim, who was a beautiful woman, was sent to Terrell, Tex., for interment.

Reichers, the woman's husband, was employed at the new capitol for several months as head bricklayer, and his wife was well known here. They left here several weeks ago and telegrams were sent here in an effort to locate Reichers, after his wife had been killed.

NO CORNER

Secured By Trust In Burley Tobacco.

INDEPENDENTS IN JUST AS GOOD SHAPE AS AMERICAN—HAVE HAD FAIR CHANCE.

The presence of independent tobacco manufacturers and buyers in Lexington during the last few days has led to gossip that the independents are in danger of being embarrassed by difficulty in securing the cheaper grades of burley tobacco.

The success of the no-crop movement has made an active demand, and high prices for the tobacco now available, but the independents are probably in as good condition with respect to stocks of raw material as the trust.

While much of the cheap 1906 tobacco has been disposed of, the entire 1907 pooled crop of more than 100,000 hogsheads has not been marketed. The Burley Tobacco Society holds more than 30,000 hogsheads of the 1906 crop of grades including the 16-cent quality and less. If the independents are actually short of stock they will probably be able to secure everything they want if they will pay the price.

The tobacco sold on the breaks last winter was purchased largely by the American Tobacco Company. The trust bought practically all of the cheaper grades. The recent large sales made by the Burley Tobacco Society were of the cheaper grades. These sales were made to brokers, and presumably the independents have the same chance at this tobacco as the trust, and if all of the cheap leaf recently sold by the Burley Society is destined for the trust, it does not mean that the independents can not secure the necessary stock.

THE PANIC IS OVER

Conditions were never better, nor will they be as good in the next ten years for Economical Building. Why?

FIRST SECOND
SEVENTH

Because building material is cheaper now than it will be in sixty days, for prices are certain to advance.

Because labor is willing to give value received for its wages.

Because mechanics in all trades are plentiful, willing to work and anxious to please.

Because the best stocks of material on hand are abundant and of the best, which will enable your work to proceed without delay.

Because in this great country of ours it is foolish to think that business will remain in its present condition, and the old adage of the early bird can truly be applied to those who do their building at this time.

Because we have at this time a splendid stock of material, and excellent force of workmen, competent superintendents, the latest improved machinery and apparatus for handling any kind of work.

Because we have an up to date planing-mill, which easily entitles us to the claim of being the best equipped firm in the South to do your building.

GOOD SHOOTING

By Only Frankfort Man On The State Team.

CAPT. JACKSON MORRIS LEADS ON SECOND DAY OF BIG SHOOT.

Louisville soldiers made a splendid showing in the competition for places on the State rifle team, and the highest score of any was made by Capt. Felix Kerrick, of Company D, First Kentucky. Capt. Kerrick made the highest aggregate score, a total of 509 out of a possible 700, which is good shooting. The names of the men who will represent Kentucky at the National rifle contests at Camp Perry, Ohio, were given out by the Adjutant General, the scores having been computed Wednesday night. The largest number of men from any one company was from the Pineville company, three men from that company winning places on the team. Louisville led but a whole regiment is located there, and the Pineville company had only fifty men from which to select good marksmen.

The National rifle shooting match was shot over twice, during the two days that the men competed. On the first day's shoot, Capt. T. Kerrick led and on the second day Capt. Jackson Morris, of Frankfort, made the highest score. Ten shots are fired at 200, 600 and 800 yards, slow fire and ten shots at 20 yards rapid fire. Ten shots were fired in skirmish line and ten shots, slow fire, at 1,000 yards. The team shot so well that there is confidence felt that Kentucky will stand close up to the top when the militia and regulars from all parts of the country shoot against each other for the trophies awarded by the Government for the best shots.

Kentuckians Whole Show At Denver.

ALMOST PACK THE CONVENTION HALL AND OTHER STATES TAKE BACK SEATS.

Urey Woodson made good at Denver, and every Kentuckian got a seat and was able to provide a few for his Denver friends. How Mr. Woodson did it, no one knows.

"Gentlemen," announced J. C. Dahlman, the next Governor of Nebraska, to a group of Nebraska ticket-seekers, "You may think that Nebraska is the whole show here, but it turns out that my colleague on the National Committee, Mr. Woodson, has our seats. The Kentuckians are in the hall and we can't put them out."

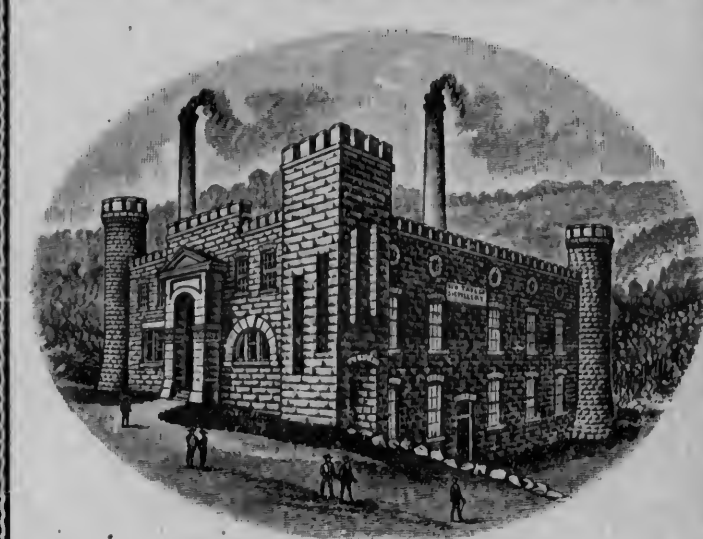

Mr. Dahlman found places for all his friends. A candidate for Governor has to. "I am a little uneasy about these Kentuckians," said a Nebraska delegate. "They have packed the convention hall; they have put through the Cleveland resolutions; they are talking about Ollie James for Vice President, and if we don't watch them a Kentuckian will be nominated for President."

He was then assured by the Kentucky delegates that there was no danger of the State's breaking its instructions for Bryan.

Rev. William Crowe Called To Virginia.

Rev. William Crowe, pastor of the Southern Presbyterian church, has announced to his congregation that he has had a call to the Presbyterian church in Abingdon, Va., and that he will go there to learn more fully the nature of the call. The Abingdon church is in the old Presbyterian section of the Old Dominion and is one of the wealthiest in that section of the country.

July 11—Mrs. Hiram Berry will entertain with a german at the Country Club in honor of Miss Cornelia Gordon, Saturday evening.

July 11—Mrs. A. W. Smith will pour tea at the Country Club Saturday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock. The honor guests will be Miss Williams Smith and Mr. George Smith.

July 14—Misses Genevieve and Edith Posey and Aileen Crosthwaite will entertain with a german at the Country Club Tuesday evening.

OUTING AT CAMP ALGONAC—

Misses Clara and Edna Kershaw, and Messrs. J. J. Downing, D. J. McNamara, J. A. Kaltenbrun and Guy N. Emmett leave Monday morning for Lexington, where they go to join the Lexington Evening Gazette party, which leaves that afternoon for Michigan, where they will enjoy an eight days' outing at Camp Algonac, on Russell Island. Returning home, the party will stop over one day at Niagara Falls, and one day at Detroit, Michigan.

DINNER FOR PRESBYTERIAN CHOIR—

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Berry delightfully entertained Tuesday evening, at their country home, "Juniper Hill," with a dinner in honor of the choir of the Presbyterian church. Their beautiful country home was attractively decorated with varied potted plants and a quantity of cut flowers for the occasion, and the delightful hours following the dinner of several courses, daintily served, were spent by the entire company in rendering choice musical selections.

The members of the choir who enjoyed Mr. and Mrs. Berry's hospitality were: Misses Lida Eiden, Harriett McClure, Genevieve Posey, Pattie Keenan, and Messrs. Ben Keenan, Richard McClure and Charles Clayton. The other guests present were: Rev. and Mrs. Jesse R. Zeigler and Mr. and Mrs. William L. Cannon and daughter, Miss Florence Cannon, of Woodford county.

MEETING OF COMPASS BRIDGE CLUB—

The Compass Bridge Club were delightfully entertained Thursday afternoon by Mrs. A. C. Van Winkle at her home on Conway street. The parlors and dining hall were quite attractive in decorations of ferns and early summer flowers.

The highest scores were made by Mrs. O. T. Poyntz and Miss Robb, who played North and South, and Mrs. Tom Hall and Mrs. Lawrence Cloud, who played East and West.

Following the game, Mrs. Van Winkle served a dainty salad course to the members of the club and their guest, Mrs. Lawrence Cloud, of Cincinnati.

LOEWEL-JACOBS ENGAGEMENT—

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Clara M. Loewel, of Louisville, and Mr. Ferd. Jacobs, of Louisville. The wedding is to be solemnized during the latter part of July, at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Clara Fromholtz, in Louisville. Following the marriage ceremony, the couple will leave for New York, where they will spend two weeks, and upon their return, they will make their home in Frankfort. The bride-elect has visited here as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Klass, and is a most charming and highly accomplished young lady. Mr. Jacobs has made his home in Frankfort for several years, and is one of the city's most substantial and prominent business men.

DINNER IN HONOR OF MISS DANDRIDGE—

One of the prettiest social functions of the week was the dinner given Thursday evening by Miss Amelia Weitzel, in the spacious dining hall of the Capital Hotel, in honor of Miss Elise Dandridge and her guests, Miss Nana Davenport, of San Antonio, Tex., and Miss Angeline Chestnut, of Danville. The dining hall, which lends itself so admirably for entertaining, was beautifully decorated in pink and white, which colors were carried out in the mints, candies, flowers and cards.

The centerpiece was a large vase of pink carnations. At either end of the table and on either side were silver candelabra holding pink tapers. The base of each candelabra was wreathed in smilax. The place cards were hand-painted double roses for the ladies, and single roses for the gentlemen.

The guests were: Miss Elise Dandridge and Mr. Garvin Morris, Miss Nana Davenport and Mr. Jordan Hoge, Miss Angeline Chestnut and Mr. Pruit Graham, Miss Mae Combs, of Lexington, and Mr. Lawrence Hager, Miss Mya Bullock and Mr. Pollock Payne, Miss Clint Cunningham and Mr. Edgar Hume, Miss Mary Lee Warren and Mr. Paul Collins, Miss Cornelia Gordon and Mr. Arch Dunlap, Miss Sina Lee Harris and Mr. C. W. Hay, Miss Alice Farmer and Mr. Steele Reading, Miss Pollock and Mr. George Gayle.

MISS DANDRIDGE'S GERMAN AT THE COUNTRY CLUB—

The Country Club Wednesday evening was the scene of the most delightful event of the week in social circles. Miss Elise Dandridge entertained with a beautiful german in honor of her guests, Miss Nana Davenport, of San Antonio, Tex., and Miss Angeline Chestnut, of Danville. The club house was handsomely decorated with palms, ferns and hanging baskets of varied green vines, while the spacious ballroom was attractively illuminated with hundreds of waxen tapers.

The table holding the big frappe bowl was the long Country Club table used in serving tea, and this was covered with a damask cloth, and at each end big silver candelabras were placed holding white tapers. Frappe was served during the evening and also a tempting sandwich course.

In the receiving line were Capt. and Mrs. W. F. Dandridge, Miss Elise Dandridge and her guests, Miss Nana Davenport and Miss Angeline Chestnut.

Miss Dandridge and Mr. Bacon Blanton led and introduced some beautiful figures. The Frankfort orchestra furnished the music, which, as usual, was excellent in every detail.

Andrew Tracy Dies Of Stomach Trouble.

WELL KNOWN YOUNG MAN PASSES AWAY AFTER SEVERAL WEEKS' ILLNESS.

After an illness of several weeks from stomach trouble, Andrew Tracy, aged thirty-two years, a well known and popular young man of this city, died at 11:55 o'clock Tuesday night at the residence of his aunt, Miss Eva Chambers, on Broadway. Mr. Tracy has been a valued employee of E. W. Howser for a number of years. The funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the South-ern Presbyterian church, and interment was in the State cemetery.

The deceased is survived by his father and two sisters, who live in Louisville, and four brothers, Edward Tracy, of Nashville, Tenn.; George Tracy, of Fort Meyers, Fla. and William and Charles Tracy, of this city.

The pall bearers were Frank Daly, E. W. Howser, Tilden Phillips, Walter Merchant, Walter Tracy and Otto Klass.

Plans For Dormitory At Institute Here.

SUBMITTED TO BOARD OF CONTROL BY ARCHITECT FROM LOUISVILLE.

Plans for the new girls' dormitory, which will be erected at the Feeble-minded Institute, to cost about $50,000, were submitted to the State Board of Control of Charitable Institutions by D. X. Murphy, of Louisville, who has been employed as the architect. Mr. Murphy has several plans and the board spent Thursday afternoon at the institution, looking over the ground and trying to decide which plan is the best. This will be taken up at a later meeting, when one of the plans will be accepted, and the work on the buildings will start in a short time. The plan which is generally favored is to have a building separated from the present building and in this have the girls located. The board awarded contracts for supplies at the various asylums for three months.

Garnett Ripley Gets Col. Green's Place.

APPOINTMENT AS ASSISTANT ADJUTANT GENERAL AGREED UPON.

Garnett Ripley will succeed Colonel Elijah Green as Assistant Adjutant General. The appointment has been agreed upon, although it has not been actually made, and Mr. Ripley is now in the office, acting in the capacity of assistant to Adjutant General P. P. Johnston. Mr. Ripley has been a clerk in the office since the Republicans have held the State offices. His home was in Oldham county, and he is highly regarded by Gen. Johnston. Col. Green resigned on July 1 to accept the position of State Immigration Agent.

Woodson Will Not Seek Chairmanship.

UNDECIDED WHETHER OR NOT HE WILL BE ELECTED SECRETARY.

Denver, July 10.—Many members of the retiring National Committee that met yesterday favored, it was said, Urey Woodson, of Kentucky, for National Chairman. Woodson, when questioned, said that he would not be named by the incoming committee, and that he was not a candidate. Bryan will name the national chairman, and it is said that it will not be Mr. Woodson.

Woodson is the practically unanimous choice of the committee for reelection as secretary. He has not decided yet, however, whether he will be a candidate for reelection. It is generally believed, however, that Woodson can have the secretaryship if he wants it. Kentuckians are pleased over the mention of the Owensboro man for National Chairman.

Rush Orders For Low Grade Burley.

Lexington, Ky., July 10.—There is a rush of orders for the low grades of the 1907 crop of White Burley tobacco held in pool by the Burley Tobacco Society, since it was announced that all the low grades of the 1906 crop have been sold. The first order was for 1,000,000 pounds, given by the Bluegrass Tobacco Company. The closing down of the Kentucky Leaf factory because it could not pay Equity prices, and the finding of other independent concerns short of supply has caused them to begin early to look out for the opening of the 1907 crop. It is said the American Tobacco Company, through its agents, has bought nearly all the 1906 low grade, in the Equity pool.

Big Price Paid For Noted Show Horse.

Lexington, Ky., July 10.—Mrs. Scripps, wife of E. W. Scripps, of the Scripps-McRae Newspaper League, who is here, has bought of Clarence Kerr, of this city, the noted show mare, Barbarossa, paying $3,000 for her. She is a beautiful chestnut, three years old, over fifteen hands high, and when two years old was sold by Major Castleman for $2,000.

All Records Broken At Democratic Convention.

Kentucky Takes a Leading Part In Demonstration.

BLIND SENATOR STARTS IT ALL.

A demonstration unparalleled in the history of political parties took place in the Democratic National Convention Wednesday says a Denver special to the Courier-Journal. For one hour and a half pandemonium reigned. A thousand Democratic delegates and 15,000 spectators threw restraint to the wind, tossed up in the air their coats and hats and rushed over each other in an effort to plant a State standard on the highest vantage point.

It was a sincere spontaneous demonstration, one that bore no semblance to a machine. The plan was to adjourn the convention immediately after the preliminary work. The motion was put by the chairman and a storm of noes responded to it. The votes came from the galleries. Many had been given tickets for this session only, and they wanted to see the fun. It was suggested that some of the national leaders of the party should address the convention. Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, was escorted to the stand, and the announcement was made that following him would be heard John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi; Bob Taylor, of Tennessee, and other representative leaders.

Gore's Words the Signal.

The blind Senator from Oklahoma had spoken less than five minutes when he happened to say that Mr. Taft had come to them and asked the rejection of their State Constitution. "But," added the Senator, "Oklahoma rejected the advice of Mr. Taft and by 100,000 followed Mr. Bryan."

Mr. Gore went no further. It was the first mention of Bryan's name. The convention on the instant was upon its feet, and there was a deafening roar. Nebraska and its convention neighbors rushed to the Kentucky and Indiana standards. The Oklahoma delegates lifted their banner to the presiding officer's stand. The banner of the Bryan Democratic Volunteers caught an eagle suspended in the air and clung to it tenaciously. It was greeted as a good omen. There were more cheers.

Kentucky in Forefront.

The Kentucky delegates, led by James Haldeman, McCreary and Virgil Smith, seized upon the Kentucky standard and carried it to the platform. The standard had been nailed to a delegates seat and in tearing it down to join the procession half of chair remained with the Kentucky sign. Within a few minutes the standards of every State in the Union with the exception of New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Minnesota and Georgia followed that of Nebraska and Kentucky. The delegates crowded around the few States and urged them to join in the hurrah.

Tammany Hall had brought to Denver with it Charley White, the prizefighter, a six foot two, fine-looking fellow, who had all he could do to protect his State's sign from being torn from its foundation by the Bryanmad delegates. One of the delegates approached Murphy, the Tammany chief, to permit New York's banner to join those of the other States.

Good Wheat Crop In Fayette County.

The best wheat crop which has yet been reported in Fayette county is that of C. S. Wilmot, Jr., raised on his farm on the Sandersville pike. Mr. Wilmot has sixty-four acres in wheat, which, when threshed a few days ago, averaged twenty-three bushels to the acre. The quality was also excellent, it testing sixty-one pounds to the bushel. The crop was sold to dealers in this city at 80 cents a bushel.

The only large crop of tobacco known in this vicinity is that of Dr. S. H. Halley, who has forty acres on Meadowthorpe farm, near this city, and forty acres on his farm near Payne's Depot.

Negro Victims Sue
Alleged Night Riders.

ACTIONS FILED IN THE FEDERAL COURT FOR $75,000 DAMAGES
—MANY DEFENDANTS.

Two suits have been filed in the Federal Court, amounting to $75,000, by Benjamin A. Hazell, attorney for negroes who were driven out of Birmingham by night riders. The number of defendants is seventy-five, and includes citizens of Lyon county, as well as alleged night riders in Marshall county. The suits required so many summonses that the supply of blanks was exhausted and a printing house received a hurry order to print them. As soon as the summonses are completed, Elwood Neel, Deputy United States Marshal, will start out to serve the papers.

The plaintiffs are residents of Illinois, and were run out of Birmingham by the two raids, in which John Scruggs, an aged negro, was killed. It is said that practically the same evidence will be used in the trials that was offered in the night rider trials at Benton, as Otis Blick, the confessed night rider and star witness for the Commonwealth, was in Paducah last week to give evidence. It is said that some of the defendants in the case are men of means.

Kentucky Doorkeeper
Saves Judge Parker.

R. L. OFFUTT KNEW THE FORMER PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE AND LET HIM IN.

Judge Alton B. Parker, of New York, came mighty near not getting into the convention. Judge Parker forgot about bringing with him his admittance credentials and when he presented himself at the delegate entrance, the doorkeeper looked wise and suspicious and passed him up to the next entrance. It happened that R. L. Offutt, of Louisville, was stationed at this door. He knew Judge Parker, and arranged that the Democracy's distinguished presidential candidate of four years ago could pass the ropes. Judge Parker was much relieved, gave a cordial "thank you" and took his seat with the New York delegation.

Escapes Massacre
To Land In Jail.

Armenians Get Freedom By Act of
Gov. Wilson—Remits Fines.

Two Armenians, who escaped massacre in Turkey and who came to this country to make a living, owe their freedom to Gov. Wilson who granted a remission of the State's part of a fine which was assessed against them in Hickman county, on a charge of selling goods, as peddlers, without a State license. The Armenians, who are Abraham and Isaac Amos, escaped from Turkey after the last massacre by the Kurds, and came to this country. They are selling lace and other articles, trying to make enough money to bring their families. They were arrested at Clinton and put in jail. The churches and religious societies took up their cases and applied to the Governor for a remission of the fines.

Mrs. Nellie S. Cox
Dies In Texas.

For Many Years Resident of Frankfort—111 One Year.

Mrs. Nellie Steadman Cox, who was born and reared at Steadmantown and a resident of Frankfort for many years died at the residence of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Harmon Steadman, in Corpus Christi, Texas. Death was due to nervous breakdown. Mrs. Cox had been in Texas since February and had not been in good health for a year. In Frankfort she made her home with her nephews, L. L. and J. L. Cox. The funeral was held at Lagorta, Texas Thursday morning. Mrs. Cox was a frequent contributor to the old Frankfort Roundabout.

BLOCKS BAD.

Paving Contracts Stir Up
Louisville.

Something Seems To Be Wrong Down The

Geo. Speer Claims He Has Race Won.

IS A CANDIDATE FOR SECRETARY.

(Special Correspondence.)

Louisville, Ky., July 9.—You know it hurts me, way down in my heart, to find fault with the Louisville Republicans. But something looks rather bad at the City Hall this week. It grows out of a contract for blocks for stone streets. According to the bids, granite blocks of certain dimensions were to be furnished the city and a number of bids were made for granite answering these specifications. The bid of a southern firm was accepted the pay to be made on the basis of first class selected blocks. When these blocks were delivered, and while they were being laid, it was found that the city had received a job lot, but when the bills were presented for payment, the bills were made out on the basis of selected blocks. The members of the Board of Public Works knew that the blocks were not according to specifications. A representative of the firm which furnished the blocks to Louisville admitted that they were not according to specifications. Yet the company sent in the bill for selected blocks, and the Board of Public Works insisted on paying the bills on that basis. Such blocks as the city got could have been secured at a saving of at least $8,000.

As I say, I don't like to find fault with the Louisville Republicans, but I would like to ask what our Republican friends would say if a similar condition had arisen while the Democrats were in control down here. As Togo would say, "I inquire to know."

Bob Phillips is an avowed candidate for the office of Secretary of the Democratic State Committee. It has been rumored that Bob was out for the place, but it was only during a recent visit to Louisville that he told some of his friends that he was out make a fight for the place. George Speer is also an active candidate for the position, and has been moving things to land the job. George says he has the job sewed up. Bob says that he has the job cinched. Somebody is bound to be mistaken, and I am not enough of an insider to tell which one it is.

The plum will be plucked pretty soon now, as soon, in fact, as the delegates and others get back from Denver, where they went last week to help nominate the next President of the United States. The committee will meet in Louisville to take action in this matter, as well as in other matters preliminary to what promises to be a most active campaign.

The will of the late George Gaubert, credited in Louisville with leaving an estate valued at $3,000,000, has been renounced by his widow, Mrs. Hattie Rogers Gaubert. Under the will, Mrs. Gaubert was given a life interest in half of the estate, with the remainder to the children of her daughter. The other half was given to the daughter for life, with the remainder to the children, thus making the children the final beneficiaries of the entire estate. Mr. Gaubert's estate consisted largely of personality, and by renouncing the will, Mrs. Gaubert gets one-half of the personality absolutely, with power to devise, and one third of the realty for life. The daughter is Mrs. Attila Cox, Jr., of Louisville, wife of a well known young lawyer, and granddaughter-in-law of Col. Attila Cox, President of the Columbia Trust Company, and well known in Central Kentucky, where the family originated. Mrs. Gaubert filed her renunciation of the will June 5, but the family was able to keep that fact from the public until this week.

BULLETS IN BRAIN.

But Cliff Roberts Probably Will Get Well.

OPENINGS IN SKULL SO LARGE THAT CONTENTS CAN BE SEEN PLAINLY.

With two bullets in his brain, one in his neck, one in his right shoulder and another in his left side, and a wound from a bullet in his face, Cliff Roberts, who was shot near Hation on last Wednesday by his son-in-law, Jarvey Brock, continues to remain perfectly conscious and has a possible chance for recovery, says the Shelby News. If he does get well, it will be one of the most remarkable cases on record.

Roberts was removed from the Brock home to the residence of his brother-in-law, R. C. Nicol, in Frankfort, last Friday, where he is receiving medical attention.

Three bullets took effect in Roberts' head. Two of them penetrated the skull and entered the brain. The openings made by the bullets were so large that the brain could be seen without any difficulty. Both entered behind the left ear, close to the base of the brain, and the third took effect near the same place. There is no paralysis and the wounded man is perfectly rational. He told members of his family Saturday that he thought he would be out in a few days. His temperature and pulse are said to be normal. He has not suffered from hemorrhage such as usually follow after such wounds.

The fourth bullet took effect in Roberts' right shoulder blade and is supposed to be buried in the bone. The fifth bullet entered the left side, and is only a flesh wound. The sixth bullet must have struck him while he was lying on the floor, for it struck his left eye-lid, breaking his glasses, ripped the skin off his cheek and grazed his left breast. Two pieces of glass were taken from his eye after the shooting.

While Roberts' vitality is remarkable, his condition is extremely critical. It is not unlikely that an abscess will form on his brain as a result of the bullets plowing through it, and blood poisoning. Reports from his bedside are to the effect that he is resting easy and feels sure he will recover. His case is being watched with great interest, especially by physicians.

Jarvey Brock, who was hit in the head with an axe before doing the shooting, has about recovered. He came to Shelbyville Tuesday and surrendered to the authorities. Judge Davis set the examining trial for July 20, and fixed his bond at $500, which Brock gave and returned to his home.

One Of Quantrell's Men
Dies In Kansas City.

William Gaugh, 64 years of age, one of Quantrell's followers, died at his home in Kansas City, Wednesday. He enlisted when he was 16 years old and served through the Civil War. Mr. Gaugh was with Quantrell on the Kentucky raid when the Guerilla lost his life. Gaugh was captured and sent to the military prison in Louisville, where he finally escaped and returned to Missouri. In the Civil War he was sent to Clay county, Mo., for recruits and there enlisted Frank and Jesse James.

Too much advertising is injurious to some businesses in the same way that too much chopping spoils mince-meat. It is as difficult to advertise some businesses too much as to chop mince-meat too fine.

Lightning Destroys Barn In Shelby County.

Lightning struck a large stock barn on "Squire Raymond's place, in the Chestnut Grove neighborhood, in Shelby county, Monday morning, setting it on fire and resulting in a total loss. The barn was filled with feed, but fortunately contained no live stock. The building was insured with Hart Wallace & Co., and the loss was adjusted Tuesday.

We will call and show you samples of any kind of printing. Use either phone, No. 11.
